

Acquittal secured in gross negligence manslaughter trial

19 February 2021

Graham Trembath QC and James Marsland instructed by Blackfords LLP secured the acquittal of their client, an electrician, in relation to a charge of gross negligence manslaughter.

The trial lasted for almost 4 weeks, with both Graham and James involved in extensive cross examination of multiple expert witnesses in relation to the electrical installation at a public house. Electrical defects in the installation had led to the death of a 7 year old boy. The Defendant was unanimously acquitted by the jury.

The case received widespread national news coverage:

- Sky News
- BBC